Property Description

Thailand’s National Alcohol Policy Committee delivered welcome news for the Kingdom’s tourism-dependent economy in mid-November 2025, reversing the controversial 2-5pm alcohol sales ban that had sparked immediate backlash from businesses, hospitality operators, and international visitors since its implementation just days earlier on November 8th.
The swift policy reversal, announced by Deputy Prime Minister Sophon Sarum at Government House, represents more than simple administrative course correction—it signals Thailand’s recommitment to tourism competitiveness during the crucial year-end travel season, creating positive implications for hospitality-focused property investments across premier destinations like Hua Hin, where foreign ownership of vacation rental properties and resort-style condominiums continues attracting substantial international capital.
The amended Alcoholic Beverage Control Act had eliminated the 1972 decree that originally established daytime drinking
